Youth Work Opportunities for All

A Scottish Executive Consultation to inform a National Youth Work Strategy

Cllr Rev Ewan Aitken,
*Leader of the City of Edinburgh
Council will also be speaking on how he sees the future of youth work in the city.*

As we move towards the end of October closing date for responses this Seminar will give you a unique opportunity to:-

- Have your say about the future of youth work in Scotland and Edinburgh
- Hear other people's views who are involved in youth work
- Hear how the Leader of the Council sees the future of youth work
- Have your chance to inform the submission by the Edinburgh Youth Work Consortium
- Assist your response if you've not already submitted

The Scottish Executive's consultation has provided a unique opportunity for those actively involved in the management, delivery and receipt of youth work to shape its future.

Key to that is ensuring that your views and voices are heard both individually and collectively. This seminar will provide a final chance to do that.

Edinburgh Youth Work Consortium will be submitting a cross sectoral response. It will be presenting the draft at this seminar and providing the chance to comment and shape the final version.

Copies of the response booklets and other related papers will be available.

The seminar has been organised by the Edinburgh Youth Work Consortium, which seeks to promote, support and develop quality youth work across the city. It draws members from the City of Edinburgh Council Departments, voluntary youth work organisations, Edinburgh Youth Council, Edinburgh Leisure and other youth work related agencies.
